17 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

18 I. INTRODUCTION

19 While Righthaven certainly contests Realty One’s contention that it was not properly 20 served with the Summons and Complaint through its registered agent and that Realty One has 21 meritorious affirmative defenses of implied license and de minimis infringement, this Court’s 22 October 18, 2010 Order (the “October 18th Order”), which found that Defendant Michael J.
23 Nelson’s (“Mr. Nelson”) unauthorized use of Righthaven-owned copyrighted material 24 constituted fair use as a matter of law (Doc. #17 at 3-4.), relief from entry of default is 25 appropriate. Moreover, while Righthaven respectfully disagrees with the Court’s fair use 26 analysis undertaken in dismissing Mr. Nelson from this case, as argued below, Realty One is 27 equally entitled to dismissal based on the findings of fact and conclusions of law reached in the 28 October 18th Order. While Righthaven’s position may seem unusual given the amount of

1 unwarranted criticism that has been directed toward it in various court filings, newspaper articles
 2 and Internet postings, the company and its counsel fully respect and honor the ethical obligations
 3 that come with the privilege of practicing before this Court. It is with these ethical obligations in 4 mind, which includes the duty of candor, that Righthaven must inform this Court of decisional
 5 law that supports granting Realty One relief from entry of default and further supports dismissing
 6 the claims against it in view of the October 18th Order. Righthaven maintains that this 7 approach, while facially unconventional, is wholly consistent with its conduct in litigating all 8 other matters pending within this judicial district.

9 II. FACTS

10 On June 25, 2010, Righthaven filed its Complaint against Realty One, David Tina, and 11 Mr. Nelson.¹ (Doc. # 1.) Service of the Summons on Realty One was effectuated on June 30, 12 2010. (Doc. # 10.) On October 6, 2010, the Clerk of this Court entered default against Realty
 13 One. (Doc. #16.) The Court dismissed Mr. Nelson from the action based on the defense of fair 14 use on October 18, 2010. (Doc. #17 at 3-4.) Over two months after Mr. Nelson's dismissal, 15 Realty One moved to set aside the default entered against it. (Doc. # 21.) As argued below,
 16 Righthaven maintains that Realty One should be granted relief from the default and, in fact,
 17 should be entitled to the benefit of the Court's October 18th Order.

18 III. ARGUMENT

19 A. Even Though Righthaven Maintains the Court's October 18th Order Was 20 Legally And Factually in Error, Realty One is Entitled to The Benefit of Mr.

21 Nelson's Dismissal.

22 Righthaven strenuously maintains the Court erred in dismissing Mr. Nelson from this 23 case by finding his infringing conduct was protected by the defense of fair use. Righthaven, 24 however, respects the Court's October 18th Order, even though it disagrees with its fair use

 26 ¹ The Court issued a Minute Order in which it advised of its intent to dismiss Defendant David Tina pursuant to 27 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 4(m) ("Rule 4(m)") in view of Righthaven's inability to effectuate service of 28 process. (Doc. # 18.) The Minute Order has set Mr. Tina dismissal pursuant to Rule 4(m) to occur on or after December 2, 2010. (Id.) Righthaven does not oppose the dismissal of Mr. Tina from this action pursuant to Rule
 4(m). Accordingly, the Court may enter Mr. Tina's dismissal pursuant to Rule 4(m).

1 analysis. In fact, Righthaven, in recognition of its duty of candor to this Court, asserts that 2 Realty One is entitled to the benefit of the October 18th Order.

3 Decisions from a variety of jurisdictions, including the United States Court of Appeals
 4 for the Ninth Circuit (the “Ninth Circuit”), support the proposition that even a non-appearing 5 party in an action may be entitled to benefit from an order or decision so as to avoid an 6 inconsistent adjudication on the merits. See Frow v. De La Vega, 82 U.S. 552, 554 (1872); In re
 7 First T.D. & Inv., Inc., 253 F.3d 520, 532-33 (9th Cir. 2001); Lewis v. Lynn, 236 F.3d 766, 768
 8 (5th Cir. 2001); Gulf Coast Fans, Inc. v. Midwest Elecs. Imp., Inc., 740 F.2d 1499, 1512 (11th 9 Cir. 1984); United States v. Peerless Ins. Co., 374 F.2d 942, 944-45 (4th Cir. 1967); Jefferson v.
 10 Briner, Inc., 461 F. Supp. 2d 430, 433-36 (E.D. Va. 2006); Barnes v. Boyd, 8 F. Supp. 584 (S.D.
 11 W. Va. 1934); 10A C. Wright & A. Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure, § 2690 (2007); 6
 12 Moore, Federal Practice, ¶ 55.06.

13 The Ninth Circuit, consistent with holdings in other circuits, has held that a defaulted
 14 defendant may benefit from a favorable adjudication on the merits where the defaulted defendant 15 would have had a closely related defense or was otherwise similarly situated with the appearing 16 defendants so as to avoid the possibility of inconsistent judgments against all defendants. In re
 17 First T.D. & Inv., Inc., 253 F.3d at 532; accord Lewis, 236 F.3d at 768; Gulf Coast Fans, 740
 18 F.2d at 1512. Courts have expressly held that defaulted defendants are entitled to the benefits 19 received from an appearing defendant dismissal or summary judgment of a plaintiff’s claims.
 20 See Davis v. National Mortgagee Corp., 349 F.2d 175 (2d Cir. 1965) (applying rule to a 21 successful motion for summary judgment); Barnes, 8 F. Supp. 584 (applying rule to a successful 22 motion to dismiss).

23 Application of the above decisions to the facts before the Court supports the conclusion
 24 that Realty One is entitled to the benefit of the October 18th Order for purposes of deciding 25 whether to set aside entry of default. Moreover, the above cases certainly empower the Court to 26 dismiss Righthaven’s claims against Realty One based on the October 18th Order. In fact, given 27 that Realty One faces identical infringement claims against it as did Mr. Nelson, the Court may 28 rely on the October 18th Order to support dismissing Realty One without any additional fair use

1 analysis. Righthaven maintains that, despite its view that the Court erred in its decision, Realty
 2 One is nevertheless entitled to the benefit of the October 18th Order.

3 B. Righthaven Concedes That Realty One Has “Good Cause” For Setting Aside
 4 The Default in View of The Court’s October 18th Order.

5 As correctly noted by Realty One in its moving papers, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure
 6 55(c) (“Rule 55(c)”) authorizes the Court to “set aside an entry of default for good cause . . .”
 7 (Doc. # 21 at 4.) This standard grants broader discretion and greater procedural flexibility to 8 afford relief from default than from entry of a default judgment. See Brady v. United States, 211
 9 F.3d 499, 504 (9th Cir. 2000). Righthaven concedes that Realty One has demonstrated “good 10 cause” for relief from entry of default in view of its entitlement to the benefits conferred by the 11 Court’s October 18th Order.

12 In determining whether “good cause” exists for relief from entry of default under Rule 13 55(c), the following factors are considered: (1) whether the plaintiff will be prejudiced by the 14 reopening of the action; (2) whether the party seeking relief has a meritorious defense that might 15 make the result at trial different from that reached by default; and (3) whether default resulted 16 from culpable conduct by the party seeking relief. See TCI Group Life Ins. Plan v. Knoebber, 17 244 F.3d 691, 696 (9th Cir. 2001).

18 With regard to the first factor, “[t]here is no prejudice to the plaintiff where setting aside 19 of the default has done no harm to the plaintiff except to require it to prove its case.” Lacy v.
 20 Sitel Corp., 227 F.3d 290, 293 (5th Cir. 2000); accord TCI Group Life Ins. Plan, 244 F.3d at 21 701. Here, Righthaven’s infringement claims against Mr. Nelson were dismissed by virtue of the 22 Court’s October 18th Order. Righthaven maintains this decision was legally and factually in 23 error. However, as set forth above, Realty One is entitled to the benefit of the October 18th 24 Order. As such, Righthaven would suffer no prejudice by setting aside the default because the 25 Court has already adjudicated the merits of the infringement claims at issue in this case through 26 its decision dismissing Mr. Nelson on fair use grounds. Accordingly, Righthaven concedes that 27 the first factor supports setting aside entry of default as requested by Realty One in view of the 28 October 18th Order.

With regard to the second factor, the moving party bears the burden of demonstrating a defense that may result in a different outcome at trial than that obtained by entry of default. See Hawaii Carpenters' Trust Funds v. Stone, 794 F.2d 508, 513 (9th Cir. 1986). Under this standard, the moving party is not required to demonstrate that it will prevail on the asserted defense, only that there is a bona fide chance that such a result could occur. See Hritz v. Woma Corp., 732 F.2d 1178, 1181 (3d Cir. 1984). As with the first factor, this factor also supports granting Realty One relief from entry of default given the Court's October 18th Order. While Righthaven disputes the merits of Realty One's alleged implied license and de minimis infringement contentions (Doc. # 21 at 8-10), engaging in a substantive analysis of these defenses is unnecessary given the October 18th Order. In fact, as argued earlier, Realty One is entitled to the benefits of the adjudication on the merits obtained in favor of Mr. Nelson by virtue of the Court's October 18th Order. Accordingly, Righthaven concedes that the second factor supports setting aside entry of default as requested by Realty One in view of the October 18th Order.

The third factor under Rule 55(c) considers whether default resulted from the moving party's culpability. See TCI Group Life Ins. Plan, 244 F.3d at 698. In this regard, "culpability" has been defined to mean "inexcusable neglect." Id. Failing to respond to a complaint after service may fail to constitute inexcusable neglect where the moving party offers a "credible, good faith explanation negating any intention to take advantage of the opposing party, interfere with judicial decision making, or otherwise manipulate the legal process." Id. at 697. In this case, while Righthaven maintains that it properly served the Summons and Complaint on Realty One's designated resident agent, it would not be unreasonable to assume that its agent failed to forward these documents or otherwise inform Realty One that responsive action needed to be taken. Righthaven certainly is not in any position to present contrary evidence on this point. Moreover, even if the Court were to deny Realty One relief from entry of default, entry of a default judgment in Righthaven's favor would likely be precluded based on application of the October 18th Order. See Frow, 82 U.S. at 554; In re First T.D. & Inv., Inc., 253 F.3d at 532-33; Lewis, 236 F.3d at 768; Gulf Coast Fans, Inc., 740 F.2d at 1512; Peerless Ins. Co., 374 F.2d at

1 944-45; Jefferson, 461 F. Supp. 2d at 433-36; Barnes, 8 F. Supp. at 584. Thus, the record before
2 the Court supports a finding of excusable neglect by Realty One, thereby satisfying the third 3 factor required for relief from entry of default.

4 IV. CONCLUSION

5 As argued above, Righthaven maintains that Realty One is entitled to the benefit of the 6 Court's October 18th Order, which dismissed the infringement claims asserted against Mr.
7 Nelson on fair use grounds. In view of Realty One's entitlement to the benefits of this decision,
8 Righthaven concedes that relief from entry of default is warranted. Moreover, Righthaven 9 further maintains that Realty One's entitlement to the benefit of the October 18th Order should 10 extend to a dismissal of the infringement claims against it without the need for any additional fair
11 use analysis by the Court beyond that already set forth in its prior decision.
